POETRY.

EDITORS REGISTER.—Perhaps many of your readers will recollect having seen the following, which went the rounds at the time the "big ox" was being exhibited about the country; but believing that it will lose none of its interest at this time while the "big oxen" are being exhibited, I submit it for republication:

A Snuff to the Big Ox.

Composed, while standing within 2 feet of him, and "within a hairbreadth" of his nose & them.

All hail! there comes a snuff to the big ox!

You are 4 thousand pounds, and are pretty well performed, thou trembles however might!

I won't tell you how you were born,

Or if you grade it in a month or so,

I suppose you was young that didn't gibe

You skinning, but al, the know you had stuff

And each around, forces and heller,

And run over bowkies, then oral beast,

O what a lot of hollow gyle make!

What a long, and you've got a tail,

What a long
